Clover Global Solutions, LP launches Critical Event Response & Recovery Program

Houston, TX – October 27, 2009

Clover Global Solutions, LP has launched the Oil & Gas Industry's first "Critical Event Response & Recovery Program" module within their Clover One World web-based application: www.clwsolutions.com to complement business continuity planning and mitigate disaster risks.

Oil & Gas Companies operate in areas where they are exposed to unrecoverable risk. There are over 4,000 offshore platforms in the Gulf of Mexico alone, with a value in excess of $100 billion dollars sitting in an active hurricane corridor. Whether an explosion, leak, spill, hurricane, tsunami, or an earthquake, a gradual recovery after a disaster strikes is no longer economically justifiable to shareholders and insurers. While prepared, critical events have challenged our Clients throughout their duration. Oil & Gas companies need to anticipate interruptions and pre-position critical response resources ahead of time, including access to the personnel who know their facilities, their operations and their culture.

Utilizing Clover's patent pending technology, skilled professionals benefit from Client-indexed search criteria providing an exact match for their project. Clover One World also provides a third party repository to which Clients may feed and direct severees, retirees and annuitants, with a first right of refusal.

"The addition of Critical Event functionality demonstrates the value proposition Clover One World offers as a best of class risk management tool for augmenting disaster recovery and business continuity planning for industry decision makers responsible for billions of dollars of capitalized investments in critical asset infrastructure operating in threatening environments," explained Chris Sutton, Vice President of Clover Global Solutions. "This is the kind of technology that is game changing. If your competitor is utilizing Clover One World, you should be using Clover One World as well," added Sutton.

The Clover One World Critical Event Response & Recovery Program allows Clover's Corporate Clients an unprecedented way to pre-position critical contract employees and prime independent contractors to be on call 24-7 for just such a critical event response. Clients can access their alumni, key individual contractors and over 15,000 world wide consultants to build a project team or respond to a disaster. Candidates can complete their Profiles with skill sets that can support disaster response and recovery operations and Clients can quickly assemble a disaster response team on demand. Clover One World's repository can import large groups to hold all your Critical Resources ready for engagement.
