Clover is committed to providing a safe and healthy environment for our employees, clients, staff, and visitors. Safety is the business and responsibility of every Clover employee and can be better achieved through proper engineering, education, training, protective equipment, and enforcement of safety rules. The responsibility begins at the working level and extends upward through supervisors, managers, and the highest level of ownership. It is essential that each of you takes an active part in initiating preventative measures to control and eliminate hazards associated with activities under your direction.

Clover intends to comply with all relevant local, state, and federal occupational and environmental regulations, codes, and standards.

Clover's Responsible Safety Officer has the responsibility for establishing and maintaining an effective Health, Safety and Environmental Program. The success of these programs can only be achieved through the cooperation and support of everyone.

It is my request that each member of our Clover family accepts the challenge of maintaining an accident-free and healthy environment. It is your positive safety attitude, your knowledge of safe practices, and your actions that will determine the success of our safety program.

Sincerely,

Carolyn J. Ortega-Sutton
President
